

Opinion

Home » News » Opinion

Don't put the brakes on Milwaukee's streetcar project

Rick Wood

South side alderman Bob Donovan (right) has been a vehement critic of Mayor Tom Barrett's streetcar project. Congresswoman Gwen Moore says critics such as Donovan don't understand the benefits of a modern streetcar to the city.

By Gwen Moore

Jan. 14, 2015 10:49 a.m.

Advertisement

Tweet 1 Recommend 0 Share EMAIL PRINT (1) COMMENTS

Thanks to Mayor Tom Barrett's proposed downtown streetcar project, opportunity is knocking loudly on Milwaukee's door. Unfortunately, there are some who refuse to hear it.

Expanding our city's public transportation options shouldn't be a controversial issue. When it comes to large metropolitan cities such as Milwaukee, public transit is widely recognized as a critical component in driving economic development and spurring economic growth. Streetcar projects, like the one proposed by Barrett, include an array of short- and long-term employment opportunities for Milwaukee residents and have a proven track record in attracting investment and encouraging greater commercial activity.

The advantages of Milwaukee's streetcar project extend far beyond its fiscal benefits. In addition to making our thriving downtown district more accessible, modern streetcars also help address critical environmental concerns such as air pollution and traffic congestion, the necessary evils that stem from a car-based transportation infrastructure. The project's emphasis on bicycle access and sustainability has the unique potential to attract new, younger residents to our downtown district and further improve our community's livability index for generations to come.

Cities such as Portland, Ore., and Seattle have earned national attention with the success of their streetcar programs. In 2008, city officials in Portland credited their streetcar line with attracting $3.5 billion in investment and the construction of 10,212 housing units within two blocks of the route. Seattle's South Lake Union neighborhood, a region once known for its sparse amenities and ubiquitous vacant lots, has seen billions in private and public dollars invested into the community since the streetcar line became operational. These achievements have prompted a massive resurgence of streetcar projects in major cities across the country.

Of course, not everyone shares Barrett's vision for Milwaukee's future. Despite the success of streetcars in other American cities, there are those in Milwaukee who refuse to entertain the mayor's proposed plan. Citizens for Responsible Government, a Milwaukee-based conservative grass-roots organization, is behind a new push to stop the streetcar project, painting the mayor's proposal as "ill-advised and wasteful." Two Milwaukee aldermen joined CRG's efforts with the formation of a special committee and a citywide petition drive. If they can find 31,000 signatures within 60 days, it will force a binding referendum on the project's funding.

Critics have made some outrageous and erroneous claims about the streetcar plan, going as far as publicly branding the project as "racist" and "immoral." Some have taken a more reasoned approach, contending that public funds would be better suited going to other priorities such as schools and improving our existing bus

ACROSS THE BOARD

The Journal Sentinel Editorial Board's blog on the day's happenings as they happen.

O'Donnell Park could have been a showcase under Northwestern Mutual

Menominee trying to get on Walker's good side (1)

Ndamukong Suh deserves more than a fine (25)

View All Blog Posts

ABOUT THE EDITORIAL BOARD

Editorial Board: Who we are and what we do

David D. Haynes: Our job - Keep the marketplace of ideas stocked

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Write a letter to the editor
Submit an opinion piece

MOST POPULAR - NEWS

most read commented e-mailed

Scott Walker's plan to merge state departments that education and enhanced mobility are critical to our city's economic and social... of Congress, I have worked tirelessly to address these vital elements of our society. is specific funding, it is important to recognize the flaws in such an argument.

would like these federal funds to be redirected to other modes of public transportation this just isn't possible. Years ago, the Federal Transit Administration, a federal agency and technical assistance to local public transit systems, made it abundantly clear that ed only for Milwaukee's streetcar project. Any attempt to change the purpose of this ditional federal legislation, a prospect that likely would face insurmountable obstacles imate.

federal government gave our city a massive streetcar gift certificate. We can take this e our city the tools and resources it needs to prosper and thrive, or we can walk away ars on the table.

familiar, it's probably because we've been here before. Remember when Republican d his back on yet another 21st-century transportation system with the rejection of stimulus dollars for high-speed rail between Milwaukee and Madison? Or when he ding that would have provided lifesaving health care coverage to 120,000 residents controversial move left Wisconsin's BadgerCare program facing a colossal shortfall, of 11,200 new jobs and cost Wisconsin nearly $2.6 billion in additional federal valuable lesson from Governor Walker's blunders: When opportunity knocks, answer w ourselves to make the same mistake with Milwaukee's streetcar project. Let's use e in our quest to reach Milwaukee's full economic potential.

t from Milwaukee, is a member of Congress representing Wisconsin's 4th district.

ts »
 are your thoughts on this story.

web and the Journal Sentinel

Best Credit Cards for People With Excellent Credit

Scott Walker's plan to merge state departments spurs concerns

In 'state of the state' speech, Scott Walker unveils road map

Crashes disrupt morning commute in Milwaukee area

Alcohol counselor resigned to persistence of drunken driving

1 dead after armed robbery at Waukesha gas station

more most popular content...

Advertisement

An Extremely Brilliant Way To Pay Off Mortgage

Bills.com

Joe Buck and Troy Aikman love the Packers. Really.

Aaron Rodgers constantly quotes 'The Princess Bride,' does other dorky things - JSOnline

More from around the web

- Powerful Plastic: The 7 Best Credit Cards for People With Excellent Credit (Next Advisor Daily)
- An Extremely Brilliant Way To Pay Off Mortgage (Bills.com)
- Acclaimed Expert's Surprising Take on Paying Off Mortgage (Bills.com)
- Ex-Microsoft exec is disrupting the traditional broker model (Yahoo! Finance | Motif Investing)
- Millennials Are Ditching Delivery for This Dinner Hack (Eater for Plated)

More from the Journal Sentinel

- Joe Buck and Troy Aikman love the Packers. Really.
- Aaron Rodgers constantly quotes 'The Princess Bride,' does other dorky things - JS...
- UW likely won't get Bob Bostad
- Milwaukee Polar Plunge attracts first-timers and veterans
- Foundation is solid, but UW has a few holes to fill for next season

Promoted Links by Taboola

E-mail Newsletter
 The latest local news delivered to your inbox Monday-Friday around noon – or whenever there's big breaking news.

enter your e-mail address

Sign Up Now!

Enter your e-mail address above and click "Sign Up Now!" to begin receiving your e-mail newsletter

Login or Register to manage all your newsletter preferences.

News Watchdog Opinion Sports Business Food Entertainment Lifestyle Multimedia

Connect with us <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Facebook Newsletters Twitter Today's paper Google Plus Subscription services YouTube Archives RSS Historical Archives Mobile Apps 	Contact us <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Phone numbers Manage account Advertising Paid Death Notices Back copies Digital access FAQ Place an Ad 	About us <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Journal Sentinel Journal Communications 	Partners
--	---	--	------------------------

© 2015 Journal Sentinel, Inc. PRIVACY POLICY/YOUR CALIFORNIA PRIVACY RIGHTS Terms of Use

Wednesday, January 14, 2015